

Sociology, Anthropology and Geography has six mission goals:

Goal 1: Students will develop critical thinking skills to evaluate the effects on societies of racial, ethnic, gender, cultural and religious diversity in the United States and around the world.

Goal 2: Students will develop critical thinking skills to evaluate social change and analyze its impact on individuals, cultures and environments in the United States and globally.

Goal 3: Students will apply sociological, anthropological and geographical theories and methods.

Goal 4: Students will demonstrate the ability to select and use technology appropriate to sociology, anthropology and geography.

Goal 5: Students will apply what they learn in sociology, anthropology and geography to the community outside of Lock Haven University of Pennsylvania.

Goal 6: Faculty will mentor students and encourage their success and well being.
